CONGRESS BEGINS SESSION

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THIS state, Governor Futrell said Friday, can not meet the terms of the federal social security act which became effective January 1. The federal law levies payroll taxes against individual employes and employers, for unemployment and retirement insurance; and in the section applying to general old-age pensions the law requires the states to match whatever donation they expect from the federal government. It was this matching of state and federal money that inspired Governor Futrell's statement Friday.

The governor's opposition probably proceeds from his knowledge of the tremendous tax bill which would fall upon Arkansas if she attempted to carry out the maximum terms of the federal proposal.

But the principle of matching state and federal dollars is sound.

And whether we like it or not it is a principle that is going to be retained.

If the State of Arkansas can match the millions of dollars the federal government has spent here on highways then the state can find money to match federal aid on old-age pensions—if it really wants pensions.

Certainly we aren't going to debate the principle of 50-50 federal-state participation. Arkansas can't push the tax bill off to Washington without pushing authority and responsibility there, too. Any candidate who advocates further surrender of state authority and responsibility to the federal government will go down to smashing defeat—that's our prediction. And we'll help him on the way down.

X X X

A lot of nonsense on this topic of old-age pensions is being talked among the people—and some newspapers, currying favor with the ignorant and irresponsible, pick up this nonsense and, by virtue of the printed page, seem to lend it dignity. But it's nonsense just the same, whether talked around the grocery's cracker-barrel or in the columns of the biggest newspaper in the land. Whatever the people get they are going to pay for—and the natural laws surrounding pensions and other retirement programs are far stronger and inviolable than the man-made laws, for instance, on the question of murder. Once we understand the pension and retirement program afforded by almost any insurance company we will be well on our way toward an intelligent discussion of tax-supported old-age pensions.

X X X

Right now there is some discussion among the people of the Townsend $200-a-month pension plan. Dr. Townsend proposes to vote pensions of $200 a month to each and every person over 60 years of age. A married couple, both above 60, would receive a total of $400 a month.

There are two objections which rise instantly to destroy the Townsend plan as a topic for serious discussion among an intelligent people—and only an intelligent people are ever able to translate words into action.

In the first place, the $200 a month which the Townsend plan would pay to a person over 60 would be required to be entirely spent each month. This $200, therefore, would not be the same $200 we now know as U. S. currency. It would be something else, whose purchasing power might be the merest fraction of a present-day dollar—and, considering how the housewife already feels toward the rising cost of meats and other food, the full effect of the Townsend plan would only have to be realized in order to be laughed out of public discussion.

In the second place, the Townsend plan violates your own common sense. A $200 retirement plan would pay to every person over 60 years of age more than this writer, owner of The Star, could possibly obtain for retirement purposes from a private insurance company on the basis of his earnings in the prime of life.

Every pension system operates on this basis: That it will pay the individual about half what his actual average monthly earnings were—and it could not pay even this large a fraction but for the fact that the individual, having already reached an advanced age, is not expected to live long.

X X X

The states of New York and Pennsylvania have public old-age pension laws, and they pay, I believe $30 a month.

These are the two richest states in America.

I leave it to your own common sense to decide which way Arkansas should go: Talk about a $200-a-month scheme, or really work for a pension law that can be accomplished.

The woods are full of crack-pots. Any person collecting dues from the people of Hempstead county for membership in an association sponsoring a scheme like the Townsend plan ought to be seized and placed in jail for fraud. It is the cruelest of all frauds for it is money wrenched from the aged and the poor under the surriest of false pretenses.

Governor Futrell says Arkansas can not match the federal government, which offers up to $15 a month for old-age pensions—meaning that the state can not afford to pay the other $15 for a total pension of $30 a month.

But Arkansas might consider utilizing one of the lower brackets. If $30 a month is all the richest states can afford, we have accepted an invitation to send Ranger Lindsay Hatchett to the Police Crime School sponsored by the Department of Justice in Washington. We expect every member of the department to benefit from the training he will receive. We hope this eventually will lead to a police training school, sponsored by this department, for the benefit o fall law enforcement officers in Arkansas."

New Clearing House Planned to Check Up on Stolen Property

By O. P. HANES
Associated Press Staff Writer

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—An enlarged identification bureau, establishment of a highway patrol, operation of a radio broadcasting station, establishment of a clearing house to check on stolen property and the opening of a police training school are among the aims of State Ranger Supt. Gray Albright.

Albright admits that the program he has mapped will take time and work but said "The additions will be of invaluable aid in the war on crime in Arkansas."

"Our identification bureau, with approximately 45,000 records, at present is able to make an identification of 15 per cent of the records received daily," he said. "This percentage will increase as our files become larger. We also furnish a fingerprint expert, whenever possible, upon request of sheriffs.

"The Ranger Bulletin, published monthly, contains descriptions of fugitives wanted by police in Arkansas and of criminals from other states thought to be operating in Arkansas. It provides descriptions and methods of operation of forgers, lists of stolen cars and property, description of missing perons, lost or stolen auto tags and other information of value to officers.

Need Radio Station

"It is our hope that we will be able to add in the near future a statewide broadcasting station to facilitate the advertisement of crimes committed, a description of the perpetrators, descriptions of their cars and warnings to peace officers.

"With the opening of 1936 we are providing a clearing house for the identification of property stolen in Arkansas. This will facilitate greatly the identification of any stolen property found and may cause the prosecution of criminals in a number of cases that otherwise would be dismissed.

"We will increase the efficiency of the Rangers greatly this year. To this end, we have accepted an invitation to

Civilians Join in Demonstration Against War—Mutiny Put Down

PARIS, France — (AP) — The anti-Fascist newspaper Seuvre carried reports Friday of a mutiny of Italian soldiers in which Fascist militiamen allegedly were killed and several soldiers were injured.

The dispatch, dated from Rome, said the mutiny occurred at Lugo di Romagna as a detachment of infantrymen was preparing to leave for Ethiopia.

It was said civilians joined in a demonstration against war when the militiamen tried to suppress the mutiny.

Anglo-French Query

PARIS, France—(AP)—Paris newspapers reported Friday that France had asked Great Britain if she were willing to send troops to the German frontier to replace French soldiers in the event of a war with Italy.

The journals indicated that the question was raised in discussions between the British and French general staffs in which the two nations were considering ho wthey would aid each other in the event Italy attacked British ships in the Mediterranean.

Half-Year Deficit Nearly 2 Billions

Year 1935 Closes With Federal Debt at Peak of 30½ Billions

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government closed 1935—half of the current fiscal year—with expenditures exceeding income by $1,879,651,192.

This deficit compares with $3,281,982,200 which President Roosevelt estimated would be the deficit for the full fiscal year ending next June 30.

The public debt at the end of 1935 was $30,557,324,062.

Quarrel at Todd Party Described

Ida Lupino Tells of Thelma's Ex-Husband Arriving With Another

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Ida Lupino, actress ,testified Thursday before the grand jury that Thelma Todd told her divorced husband "plenty" when he appeared as the escort of another film star at the scene of a party which preceded Miss Todd's mystery death.

The former husband, Pasquale di Cicco, previously told the grand jury that his blonde ex-wife only laughed when she saw him.

"What actually happened was that Thelma told him off plenty when he came with Margaret Lindsay, after having been invited to attend our party," Miss Lupino said.

Di Cicco testified that after Miss the same cafe where Miss Lupino's party for Miss Todd was held. He had explained he was only "kidding" when he asked Miss Lupino to invite him and have him seated next to his former wife.

"I thought he was serious," Miss Lupino said she told the grand jury.

Di Cicco testifie dthat after Miss Lupino invited him he had his secretary telephone her house, declining the invitation.

"My servant is sure no one called to decline the invitation," Miss Lupino said.

Eugene Blalock, deputy district attorney, described Miss Lupino's testimony as "some of the best we've had."

Miss Todd's vivacious appearance concealed a brooding nature. "she wished some accident would take her life" and she had "a very bad heart," Miss Lupino said.

Stanford Puts Over Winning Touchdown

—NEA Service, Los Angeles, Calif.

The red horde of Stanford struck swiftly against the Texas Mustangs from Southern Methodist University in the celebrated annual game Wednesday in Pasadena Rose Bowl, before 85,000 spectators. Employing the aerial tactics which brought S. M. U. to national football prominence, the Californians scurried down the field in the first quarter, and here you see the line plunge, by Bill Paulman, quarterback, that brought the only touchdown of the game. The phalanx of Mustangs coming in from the left could not stop the necessary one-yard gain. Final score: 7-0.

State Can't Use U. S. Security Plan

"Impossible" for Arkansas, Declares Governor Futrell Friday

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Futrell said Friday he "feared the national security legislation as enacted presents an impossible program for this state.

The governor spoke at a meeting of the State Welfare Commission and the Social Security Commission, which latter group was appointed some months ago to study the national legislation as it applies to the present Arkansas welfare laws.

The governor renewed his attack on the national law's provisions requiring the states to match federal funds in payment of pensions to the aged, and for relief of the blind and crippled and dependent children.

Farm Credit Unit to Meet Jan. 13th

Production Association's Annual Session Scheduled at Nashville

All arrangements have been made for the annual meeting of members of the Nashville Production Credit Association of Nashville, Ark., according to Jay V. Toland, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting will be held in the courthouse, at Nashville, and is scheduled to start at 10 a. m. January 13. Mr. Toland expects all members and friends of the association to be present.

The main part of the program will be in charge of local members, with A. N. Johnson, president of the association presiding. Talks are to be made by Gip Martin, W. D. Wesson, and L. C. Sommerville. Dr. L. J. Norton of the Production Credit Corporation of St. Louis is scheduled to make a short address.

The Nashville Production Credit Association is a cooperative short-term credit agency supplying credit for agricultural production purposes to farmers of Howard, Hempstead, Pike, Nevada, Clark, Sevier and Hot Spring counties.

Upon obtaining a loan each borrower becomes a member of the association and purchases voting stock. Each member has an equal voice in the management of the association through the election of directors chosen from the membership. The cooperative principle of "one member—one vote" is followed, regardless of the number of shares a member owns.

Mr. Johnson, president of the association, invites all farmers to attend the meeting, whether or not they are members of the association.

"There is no better place to learn about the cooperative credit system which has been established by congress to supply farmers with credit at cost," he said. "We want everyone to understand its functions, the facilities it has to offer, the need for making only sound loans, and the method by which funds are obtained from private investors."

Fulton Boy Held as Local Forger

Ray Sherman Jailed for Alleged Frauds Here Totaling $200

Ray Sherman, 21-year-old Fulton youth, was held in jail here Friday facing charges of forgery after allegedly passing 15 checks in Hope, all ranging from $9 to $25.

Eleven of the checks, given to various Hope merchants Thursday afternoon, had been taken up at noon Friday, Deputy Sheriff Reginald Bearden said.

Although he is alleged to have forged checks amounting to $200 or more, Sherman had only 42 cents in his pockets when arrested Friday morning while walking along the highway near Texarkana.

He was nabbed by Deputy Sheriff R. O. Robins who was enroute to Texarkana in search of Sherman. The youth offered no resistance.

"You've got me. I know what you want. I don't know why I did it," were his first words when Deputy Robins drove up beside the youth. He was placed under arrest and returned to Hope.

Officers announced Friday afternoon that Sherman had confessed to the wholesale forgery at Hope. Officers further quoted the youth as saying that he had passed checks at Texarkana, Rodessa, and other places.

The forged name of Butler Sturdivant of Fulton was signed to all of the checks that have shown up, officers said. Most of the checks were written for the same amount, $17.85

Ched Hall, assistant cashier of Citizens National Bank, detected the forged name when one of the checks appeared at the bank Friday morning. Mr. Hall notified officers and a search was soon under way, ending with Sherman's arrest on the highway near Texarkana.

Officers said firms cashing checks for Sherman included: Burr Store, Boswell & Higgason, Gorham & Gospell, J. C. Penney Co., Floyd McDowell Second Hand Clothing store, Jack's Newsstand, New York Store, Patterman's Department store, George W. Robison & Co., and Scott store.

Officers said that the youth appeared at most the stores and pur-

Clements Owes No Taxes to County

He Explains There Is No Connection With Landes Supply Company

In regard to publication of a legal advertisement and news story appearing in The Star Thursday about Sheriff Jim Bearden serving notice on Landes Supply company that its personal property would be subject to seizure unless the tax was paid, L. M. Clements made the following statement:

"First, I want the public to know that Landes Supply company has no connection whatever with the Clements Grocery company.

"The Landes Supply company moved its store from Hope about March 10 of 1935. And I, the former manager of Landes Supply company, set up a store in the same building under the name of Clements Grocery Company.

"I personally owe no taxes to the county.

"In behalf of Landes Supply company I want to say that this firm has always been a liberal contributor toward all civic movements for the betterment of Hope and its trade territory.

"The taxes the sheriff mentioned were delinquent one year as compared to numerous others whose taxes have been delinquent for several years.

"I believe that the sheriff took undue advantage of Landes Supply company in singling them out for an example on account of the company being well known and the fact that the store has been removed from the town and county, leaving only a few fixtures of small value in storage with me, L. M. Clements.

"I believe the sheriff was earnest and sincere in performing his duty, but I don't believe that he considered the possible injury to me, due to the fact that I opened the store for Landes and that the general public still thinks of this store as being the property of Landes Supply company."

First Licenses Are Purchased in Hope

Dr. Chas. Champlin, Chief John W. Ridgdill Tie for First Honors

Dr. Charles Champlin and Chief of Police John W. Ridgdill became the first persons in Hempstead county to purchase state atuomobile license tags which went on sale Thursday morning in the Arkansas revenue office in the Carrigan building, South Elm street.

Both obtained their license at the same time, one application being written by Revenue Agent Ed Van Sickle and the other by Revenue Agent C. C. Mitchell.

Drivers license are being issued along with applications for license for motor vehicles.

Revenue agents asked that automobile owners bring their registration cards of last year, showing motor and license numbers.

The present final date for obtaining an application is January 10.

At Hope city hall, Mayor Albert Graves became the number one purchaser of city automobile license, which went on sale Monday.

Eight persons had obtained city license up to Friday morning. The final date for purchase is February 15. The price is $2.50.

Bruno's Wife to Sail for Europe

Despairing of Clemency, She Arranges for Steamship Passage

LIVERPOOL, Eng. — (AP) — The Charles A. Lindberghs left Liverpool Friday for Cardiff, Wales, where, their representative said, they will seek "quiet and rest."

Bruno's Wife Leaves

TRENTON, N. J.—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann has reserved passage on a steamship to Germany for herself and her son, Mannfried, aged 3, apparently despairing that the Court of Pardons will save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from death in the electric chair the week of January 13.

A cash deposit has been paid on second class tickets, held in a fictitious name, New Jersey state officials learned Thursday from the liner's owners. Officers of the navigation compaiy assumed that state and federal authorities had to be notified of Mrs. Hauptmann's proposed flight from the United States.

The veil of secreev was not completely lifted from the faithful German housewife's plans, however. The date of sailing and name of the vessel were not revealed. But it was indicated that she would not go to relatives in Germany until Bruno's fate is definitely sealed.

If Bruno pays the death penalty, Mrs. Hauptmann may remain long enough to arrange for disposition of his body, probably with the intent of providing burial in Germany. But in any event she will embark for Europe soon unless events unexpectedly turn in Hauptmann's favor.

Mrs. Hauptmann's last trip to Europe, the prosecution contended in her husband's trial, was financed with Lindbergh ransom foney. She has always denied this, insisting the funds were her own, saved when she worked as a waitress and clerk in the bakery shop where, she testified, Bruno called for her the night of the kidnaping, March 1, 1932.

Neither the alibi she sought to establish for Bruno, nor her explanation that she had made previous visits to the kidnaping and payment of the $50,000 ransom—helped Hauptmann in his fight for life.

Neutrality, Bonus Issues Welcome Law-Makers Back

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Fires Blast at Bonus—With No Effect

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS

President Addresses Joint Session of Both Chambers Friday Night

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Convening at noon in an aura of politics congress found itself confronted at once Friday by the explosive neutrality and bonus issues.

Hardly had the gavel fallen, before an administration bill seeking some discretionary embargo powers for the president, and the veterans organizations' bonus measure, were introduced.

The United States Chamber of Commerce opened up against a compromise bonus bill, contending that it would cost $1,000,277,000 more than congress originally intended.

The house members backing it went ahead just the same.

The senate was in session only 20 minutes. A resolution for a joint session Friday night to hear President Roosevelt's address was approved without debate.

The Neutrality Bill

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A permanent neutrality bill which would give the president broad discretionary power to embargo war materials and retain existing mandatory embargoes on actual implements of war for belligerent nations was introduced in the house Friday by Chairman McReynolds, Tennessee Democrat, of the foreign affairs committee.

McDeynolds said the bill is "satisfactory to the administration."

To Open at Night

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Democrats and Republicans exchanged fiery retorts Thursday night over the president's plan to deliver his address to congress at an extraordinary joint session Friday night.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, was among the first to protest against the charge by Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee that the president's plan to deliver his opening message at night was to bring this constitutional privilege "down to the level of a political speech."

"Mountain of Molehill."

"I think this effort to make a mountain out of a molehill is rather absurd," the Arkansas senator asserted. "Of course the hour of 9 o'clock was chosen for the purpose of giving the message full publicity. If anyone objects to that he has the same right to do so that others have to approve it."

Representative Snell of New York, Republican House leader, applauded the Fletcher statement, saying the party chairman had "put the thing before the public in the proper light," and adding: "Everybody knows what this means."

6. The Dividing Aisle

Democratic members sit on the right of the presiding officer and Republicans on the left in both senate and house. A dividing aisle separates them.

Seniority governs the choice of seats in the senate. Members of the house sit wherever they can. However, two long, red tables in the center on each side are reserved for the majority and minority leaders, the chairman and ranking members of the committee in charge of the particular bill under consideration at the moment and aides to the leaders.

The house speaker and the president of the senate (who is Vice President of the United States) each occupies an elevated dais. Many of the Senate desks are relics of the old senate chamber.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi uses the desk of the former president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis. Senator Glass of Virginia uses that of Calhoun and Senator Hale of Maine sits at the desk once occupied by Daniel Webster.

These famous old desks are located on both the Democratic and Republican sides of the chamber. They still are equipped with sanddusters the old equivalent of blotting paper.

Boxes for snuff, once generally used, still are in the senate chamber, near the Vice President's dias, but are there for exhibition purposes only.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Next to calcium, among the minerals essential to your body's growth and development, comes phosphorus. Four-fifths of all the calcium in the body is closely associated with the use of phosphorus. There is constant bodily reaction between these elements.

Phosphorus is concerned in cell multiplication and cell movement. It is involved in maintaining proper liquid content of the tissue. It is important in regulating reaction of the blood.

Children particularly require phosphorus, because they are growing and forming new tissue.

If conditions in the body are not favorable to deposit of phosphorus and calcium in the bones in the form of calcium phosphate, the condition called rickets develops. In this condition, the bones curve so that the children become bowlegged, and have twisted ribs and crooked chests.

Vitamins also are involved in the control of calcium and phosphorus of the body.

There is also much phosphorus in the nervous system. This once gave rise to the superstition that fish is a brain food, since it is known that the flesh of fish and the tissue of the brain are both rich in phosphorus.

Of course, the superstition is without any real scientific merit. A moron could eat a ton of salt mackerel and still be a moron.

Phosphorus is found in mother's milk to the amount of 3.5 milligrams in each thousand grams. It occurs in egg white to the extent of two milligrams to each thousand grams, and also in potatoes, wheat germ, beef, and milk.

Certain foods are much richer in phosphorus than are others. Among the richest are tomato, cabbage, cucumber, celery, beets, lettuce, carrots, spinach, and milk.

Phosphorus occurs in foods in many different forms, all of which seem of bodily use. Because of the great importance of phosphorus, it is believed desirable to have a margin of 50 per cent over the daily exchange in the body.

Usually, the daily exchange amounts to .08 gram of phosphorus, or almost one-thirteetnh of an ounce. Thus the body needs daily about one-fiftieth, or 2 per cent, as much phosphorus as of protein.

Today's Health Question

Q.—Is it harmful to leave a decaying wisdom tooth in the mouth? Does it poison the system in any way?

A.—It is always harmful to leave any decaying tooth in the mouth for an extended time. The usual sequence of trouble is an exposed pulp (nerve) with pain, followed by death of the pulp and subsequent abscess. It does not poison the system till an abscess has formed. These teeth usually are not as well developed as other molars.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Mary Heaton Vorse is a wise, understanding woman who has been examining the labor movement in America for more than 20 years; and she sums up her experiences in a lucid and persuasive book entitled, "A Footnote to Folly."

Mrs. Vorse dates the beginning of her education from the moment when, as a reporter, she was sent to Lawrence, Mass., to cover the great textile strike in 1912. She has been covering strikes ever since; she has also taken her notepaper and pencil into Europe, to look into the famine and desolation caused by the war.

Because she sees the old rule of tooth and claw still ruling American industry, and sees the world as a whole preparing for a new war, she has given her book the title that it bears.

Her book is filled with a deep, passionate indignation—the kind of indignation which comes from much looking upon injustice.

She tells of our industrial battles—Lawrence, Ludlow, the Mesabi range strike, the great steel strike, and others—dissects the 1920 red scare, tells of the frightful suffering in war-torn Europe in 1919, recalls the Russian famine of 1931.

And she still clings to her old hope that if only people can be made to understand ho wall these things happen and what they mean, they will take steps to end them.

As she looks back, she finds that her interest in the labor movement and the peace movement arises from her sympathy with children. She sees injustice, poverty, and suffering—and grows angry because it is children who must pay the price for them. And she communicates her emotion very ably.

Published by Farrar and Rinehart, this book retails at $3.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

On New Year's Day, children, it used to be a binding matter if you made a "promise" or "pledge" to yourself. If you said you were going to stop kicking the door open, it meant that exactly, and not just maybe.

If you did not keep your New Year's Resolution, particularly if you had let it be known, it showed that you weren't as good as your word. And that was bad.

At present this resolution business is considered a sort of joke. Mr. Smith says, "I'm not going to smoke another cigarette," then in the next hour buys a pack. Mrs. Smith says she isn't going to eat a single piece of pie for a year, then eats two pieces for dinner that night.

So you cannot go by the old folks—that is, if you think you'd like to make a New Year's promise to yourself. You see, older people haven't any too much "will power" sometimes. It takes children from four to twenty (oh yes, to me twenty is still fresh, rosy youth) to do things they say, and say what they mean.

Some Ideas Listed

Now I'm not preaching or asking or suggesting. But if you run your eye over this list, maybe something will strike you that fits your case. For instance you might:

Try to see your mother's or father's side when they seem to be too strict. They know so many things about life and people that you don't. Actually, parents are very smart. Even the dumbest. They worry because they know you don't know danger when you see it.

Try very hard not to compare your mother to other mothers, or your father to other fathers. You may think Mrs. Smith's house lovelier and find Mrs. Smith merrier and prettier and wish your mother was like that. But her home isn't yours and your mother has problems Mrs. Smith hasn't. Don't criticize her and make it harder. Love and respect her and help her. Don't get it into your head, either, please, that dad could be a millionaire if he tried. Maybe he would be set up all sorts of ways, and have more courage, if his family made him feel important. Between you and me, children, fathers are very funny. Some are even afraid of their sons and daughters and have to bark a lot, like whistling to keep up your courage.

Try hard to obey. Oh yes, it sounds foolish, I know, when some of the things you are told to do bore you to death almost. But it happens that obedience to orders is good for all of us. It builds up character, even though we cannot see the reason at the time. Don't be afraid to obey. You won't become a sissy or a mamby-pamby. It's just the other way around.

Appearance Guides Opinions

Keep neat and clean. It is odd how people just give us one look and decide instantly by our appearance exactly what we are. They might be wrong but they think they are right. And that's the danger.

Do a lot of stooping around the house. Someone has to pick up and put away. It isn't fair for mother to be forever clearing up your mess, is it?

Tell somebody in the house where you are going. That is only right.

Don't be a tease or a grouch or a goop. One kidder, or killjoy or smart aleck can ruin the day for everybody.

Learn to save your clothes. It's so hard to get out spots and mud and stains.

Tell the truth. This is a real art fellows—and girls. Young people can make truth fashionable and smart just as some of the up-and-coming young people recently have decided that milk at parties is far snappier than cocktails, if you know what I mean. There is something about truth, (the harder the better), that makes a pillow feel good. And gives you a grand appetite.

Erosion Meeting Series Planned

Craig Rosborough, Project Manager, Announces Conservation Rallies

Craig Rosborough, local project manager of the Soil Conservation Service, has announced a series of meetings to explain the co-operative program in soil erosion control that is now in operation by the United States Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service.

All farmers attending the meetings will have an opportunity to discuss the problems that pertain to their individual farms and to sign a request for an inspection of their farms.

This is a service that will be most valuable to farmers and their farms in years to come and this opportunity is given all those interested to hear the complete program discussed in detail.

A Soil Conservation association will be formed by selecting a representative from each community.

Below is a schedule of meetings to be held.

Centerville, Monday, January 13, 2 p. m.

Bodeaw, Tuesday, January 14, 2 p.m.

Shover Springs, Wednesday, January 15, 2 p. m.

Sardis, Thursday, January 16, 2 p.m.

eight months of the department' existence neared the $50,000 mark as the new year opened.

The breakdown:

Value of recovered stolen property	$ 7,252.41
Bond forfeitures	100.00
Fines imposed	28,223.50
Costs assessed	11,077.76
Total	46,653.67

"The amount of fines and costs assessed and the value of the stolen property recovered is several thousand dollars more than the total amount expended by this department," the superintendent declared. "Collecting of the courts in counties or municipalities where the cases are tried pay the fines into their treasuries. No costs are paid to the rangers. Our records show that about 60 per cent of the fines and costs are paid, which is more than our operating expenses, exclusive of equipment and incidentals."

Urge Methodists to Abolish Liquor

Those Who Profit From It "Should Be Forced Out of Church"

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP) — Southern Methodists were urged Thursday night to build up a church sentiment "that will back up concerted action by those who favor the eradication" of liquor.

Dr. J. Q. Schisler of Nashville, Tenn., head of the church school department of the General Board of Education, Methodist Episcopal church, South, said that Christians "must totally abstain" from the use of alcohol, nequaint others with the facts as to its "effect on the human body" and help build up sentiment in support of those working for its eradication.

Addressing the Methodist Educational Council, he said that one of the problems facing the church in its attack on alcohol is "the church member who profits from the sale of liquor." He said there are two solutions.

"The first," he said, "is the building of a sentiment in the church so strong against the participation of a church member in a liquor business that a man who is involved in this traffic will resign his position in the church or get out of the traffic.

"The second solution is slowly and faithfully and with love, to seek to change the mind of the person so engaged. Much of the attack of the church on the liquor problem in the past has been vindictive and has lacked the element of love for the individual which characterized Jesus' relationship to individuals of whatever sort."

"Liquor did not win its war with the repeal of prohibition," Dr. Schisler continued.

"That was a skirmish. The real fight is on now and its a mad fight for the childhood and youth of the nation. Arrayed on one side are the brewers, distillers, wholesalers, retailers and bootleggers of liquor, with some politicians.

"On the other side are the churches, Christian citizens, certain temperance organizations, a growing number of scientists, physicians, and, for the most part, public schools. American people have a weakness for believing propaganda and keen, well-financed unscrupulous propagandists made America believe prohibition a failure.

"They did it because the church was asleep, the home and the schools failed to educate. Only as we educate and continue to educate do we prepare the way for effective and permanent liquor control."

With All My Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Against the wishes of her grandmother, aristocratic MRS. WILLIARD CAMERON, DANA WESTBROOK marries DR. SCOTT STANLEY, struggling young physician.

Before her marriage, RONALD MOORE had been in love with Dana. NANCY, Dana's half-sister, loves Ronald, but hides her feeling behind a disdainful attitude.

Both Mrs. Cameron and PAULA LONG, who has loved Scott for years, hope the marriage will not last.

Dana becomes aware of Paula's infatuation for her husband. After a misunderstanding, she returns to her grandmother's home. Mrs. Cameron decides to do all she can to make the separation permanent.

Ronnie is a comforting friend. Dana remains disconsolate, believing Scott loves Paula. Scott, meanwhile, believes Dana left him because he is poor.

He is taken into partnership by the wealthy DR. OSBOURNE.

After six months, Dana decides to divorce Scott, believing that is what he wants.

Ronnie goes abroad, hoping Dana will realize she loves him. He returns and they go to a house party. Dana's indifference makes Ronnie unhappy. Dana accepts an invitation to go fishing with an Englishman. Their boat almost runs down another boat, and she recognizes Scott as one of the occupants.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

DESPITE the fact that he was trying to be understanding, Ronnie was aggrieved by Dana's desertion. It had not been flattering, to say the least, for Dana to accept Cyril Lancaster's invitation to go fishing.

When their absence lengthened past the breakfast hour Ronnie was sure he had just cause for grievance.

Gay groups eddied about him. No one was gayer than Paula, but Ronnie sensed that Paula was wearing a mask. Her nickel-etched laughter held a note that was almost hysterical. For some reason Ronnie felt sorry for Paula.

As though drawn by a current of sympathy, she detached herself from the others and joined him.

"They should have caught all the fish in the lake by this time," she said, adding, "It occurs to me that you and I are in the same boat, Ronnie."

"Oh, I guess we could have fished, too, if we hadn't been lazy," Ronnie said carelessly.

"Don't be dumb. I didn't mean that."

"What did you mean?" Ronnie asked impatiently.

Paula's eyes narrowed. "Dana and I are a couple of fools," she said slowly. "But she is a bigger fool than I ever was. Figure it out."

Ronnie frowned. Paula was always trying to be subtle. Or was this her way of making trouble, settling a score with Dana? If she was hinting something about Scott it was all a lot of nonsense. Dana had been divorced from Scott six months now, and it had been almost a year since she had set eyes on Women don't go about in these modern times eating their hearts out for men they have deliberately divorced.

Ronnie determined that he would not let what Paula had said worry him.

But an hour later he was driving to town. He had explained that business required an hour or two of his time.

"I'll be back by lunch time," Ronnie said. "Tell Dana to save her biggest fish for me."

On the drive his resentment increased. He had dreamed of his homecoming through months of travel. The boat couldn't dock fast enough to suit him. Yet here he was, alone, ditched for a man who meant nothing at all to Dana.

* * *

HE drove past the Cameron home. Nancy was coming down the walk. Ronnie stopped the car and got out. Nancy stopped and waited, her dark eyes wide.

"Well, Nancy," Ronnie teased. "I expected a big, welcoming smile and what do I get? Not even a how-de-do."

Nancy laughed nervously. "Serves you right. Looming up in front of me, when I thought you were miles away."

She made no move to go. Which, Ronnie decided humorously, was a real compliment. Whenever Nancy saw him, she always made a dash for a door.

"Where's Dana?"

"Out at the lake."

"Oh," Nancy said. She added, "You must have had a wonderful time abroad, Ronnie. I suppose you've seen everything there is to see. It must have been grand."

"Not so grand. It can be lonely as the dickens when you go days on end without seeing anyone you know or care about."

He thought Nancy's face clouded a little. Nancy must be rather lonely. She had so little fun. That was why she magnified such things as traveling.

On an impulse he said, "How about a swim? I'll return for you in 15 minutes. What it took me six months to see."

Amicably, Nancy agreed. She said capaciously, "It's as if you couldn't bear to leave out one single thing."

That was a large order. But with Nancy's interest, interrogation face turned toward him, Ronnie found himself pouring out his soul. Nancy hadn't traveled much. She was well read. Strangely enough, she was most interested in the things that had happened in Russia and Italy.

* * *

THEY passed Paula's home and presently, returning, passed it again.

Ronnie remembered what Dana had said about his house the day he had been sent for, looking lovely and young in that old rattletrap of a car.

"Gloomy old dump," Ronnie said now.

Nancy stared. "You don't like it?"

"Not especially. Do you?"

"Better than any place in town," Nancy said. "You see, Ronnie, I was a child when your father built it. I always thought of it as a castle. I've always thought of it that way. Besides, it's beautiful."

Ronnie laughed. But there was a tight feeling in his throat. Of all the people in the world, Nancy was the last he would have suspected of such sentiments.

Dana hadn't liked his home. She had said so frankly. True, she had not known it was his home but the fact remained. He hoped some day Dana would grow to like it. If she didn't, he'd have to sell it after they were married and build another.

Lately Ronnie had developed a real affection for the place. Perhaps it was his long absence that had made him sentimental about it. Or it might be associations. The house was filled with memories of his father, who had loved every inch of it. The immense structure represented the fulfillment of his father's long dream of achievement.

Ronnie turned the car. "Would you like to have a look at it inside?" he asked.

"Could we?"

"You funny girl! Could we? I have an idea we could."

Nancy smiled. "It's hard to realize it is really your home. I never associate grandeur with you, Ronnie."

"Is that one of your subtle digs? Or is it meant as a compliment?"

"Do your own thinking," Nancy retorted gally.

* * *

THEY drove through the tall iron gate, along the curving drive. At the door, Ronnie turned to ask, "Do you like your grandeur served with all the trimmings? A touch of the bell will bring one of the servants. Or we can just turn a key in the lock and enter unannounced."

"Let's have the trimmings," said Nancy, an excited note in her voice.

"Now, I know the kind of wife you're going to make some man some day. He won't be able to make money fast enough for you!"

Nevertheless Ronnie looked pleased. He pressed the bell and a servant in livery answered immediately, bowed and withdrew.

"Ordinarily," Ronnie teased. "I would say, 'How are you, Paula Long?' And he would answer, 'Very well, Mr. Ronnie. And how are you, sir?' But today he senses there is something unusual in the air. He knows, intuitively, that an impression is wanted. So he springs up at the door and then disappears."

Nancy was only half listening to the mastering talk. Her eyes shone as she moved across the soft rugs, through the lofty rooms.

Splendid paintings, rare furnishings from the old world, exquisite pieces of statuary, glittering chandeliers from great French and Italian palaces, beautiful Venetian mirrors. It was all magnificent spectacular.

An hour later Ronnie told Nancy goodby at the door of her home.

"Oh, Ronnie, it's been lovely. It was almost as though I had been traveling, too."

"I've had a great time." Ronnie squeezed her hands. "Guess I'd better be on my way or I won't make it back by lunch time."

Half way down the walk, he turned. Nancy still stood in the doorway, but the glow had left her face. She wore the expression that was more familiar to him, the solemn look of a little girl who has been disillusioned about Santa Claus.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

Hands that ar cared for properly will remain just as smooth and white during the winter months as they were last summer. It is neglect alone which causes them to become red and rough.

Remember that hand lotion or cream should be applied after each washing—not merely once or twice a day. Pick a greaseless variety which leaves no oily residue on the inside of your gloves.

When you have scrubbed hands and nails with lukewarm (not hot) water and a bland soap, rinse, then dry carefully, pushing cuitcle back with the towel. Smooth on hand lotion or cream and massage it in, using upward strokes from fingertips to wrists. Be sure to put plenty on wrists.

If, in spite of meticulous washing and diligent use of lotion, your hands seem to chap, use plain warm olive oil or a rich tissue cream on them one night a week. Lavishly coat them with one or the other, then wear clean cotton gloves while you sleep.

Be sure your evening as well as daytime gloves aren't too tight. After all, while a half size smaller actually can make no difference in the appearance of the size of your hands, it can mean the difference between ugliness and beauty. Tight ones often cause redness for some time after they are taken off.

Black-Draught Good Laxative

Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons, of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headaches, dull, tired feeling, biliousness."

"And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for sick headache. It certainly is good."

When a man says "Black-Draught is good," it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed. —adv.

A Thought For the New Year

With the grains of thought seed
In the soil of the mind,
We are sowing and sowing
Through the years of our time.
Each seed that is planted
Brings forth of its kind,
Whether grown in the ground
Or sown in the mind.
The wheat and the corn,
The oats and the rye,
The Love and the Hate,
All return by and by.
Neither thorn bush nor thistle
Ever turns to a rose.
The good or the Evil
Comes back like it goes.
Whether corn seed or kind seed—
The law's just the same;
They multiply always
And we reap true to name.
Sow a thought, reap an act;
Sow an act, reap a habit;
Sow a habit, reap a character;
Sow a character, reap a destiny.

New Deal Losing 3 to 2 in Digest

Total of 1,370,774 Magazine Ballots Tabulated From All 48 States

The nation at large votes slightly over 3 to 2 against the New Deal in The Literary Digest poll, according to the latest tabulation which includes returns from all forty-eight states for the first time.

The total of 1,370,774 ballots tallied on the question: "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" shows 541,845 "yes" votes, or 39.53 per cent, to 828,929 "no" votes, or 60.47 per cent.

The present percentage of the balloting against the New Deal compares with 58.51 of last week's returns, an increase of 1.96 points adverse to the New Deal.

The current issue of The Literary Digest in which the latest poll statistics appear, states that thirty-six states are registering majorities against the Administration's policies.

The twelve states which are voting in support of Roosevelt's policies include Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia, all of which except Utah are southern or border states.

"The current tabulation has added interest because it contains preliminary reports from the last seven states to be heard from including several large ones: New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, Maine, Delaware and Nevada," says the Digest.

"New York's first 50,680 show an unfavorable percentage of 65.30, while Pennsylvania's 101,381 ballots are 68.63 per cent against the New Deal.

"New Jersey this week casts only 16,060 votes; the unfavorable percentage is 71.96.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

GARRETT MEMORIAL BAPTIST
Hollis Purtle, Pastor

Sunday school meets at 10 o'clock eahc Sunday morning and evening each Sunday morning. Morning and evening services every second and fourth Sunday.

Our Young People's Training course has started a new quarter and we are wanting many more new members.

Ladies Auxiliary meets Monday at 2:30 p. m.

Prayer meeting starts at 7:30 Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation and a hearty welcome awaits all.

FIRST CHURCH of the NAZARENE
511 South Elm street
Rev. W. Paul Hodge, Pastor

Rev. Holland London, the District Superintendent of the Arkansas District of the Church of the Nazarene will preach at the First Church of the Nazarene, 511 South Elm street, at 7 p. m. Saturday, January 4. The public is cordially invited at hear Bro. London.

Rev. London is a young man with wide experience. He has preached in every state state in the union, and just recently returned from a trip to the Holy Land.

Sunday school 10 a. m. Morning worship 11 a. m. Junior Reserve 7 p. m. Evening service 7:30 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m.

HOPE GOSPEL TABERNACLE
Bert Webb, Pastor

A special feature of the services at the Gospel Tabernacle at all the meetings on Sunday will be the singing of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williamson of Oklahoma City. These young people are radio artists and musicians of unusual ability and we feel that we are very fortunate to have them for this time. Mr. Williamson has recently been connected with stations at Little Rock and Dallas and before their recent marriage his wife was connected with an Oklahoma City station.

Sunday school will meet promptly at 9:45 Sunday morning. Classes are being arranged and a competent interesting teacher will be in charge of a class for your age. Visit our Sunday school next Sunday.

The communion and taking of the sacrament will be observed at the 11 o'clock service at which Rev. Webb will deliver an appropriate sermon.

Children's church under the direction of Mrs. Webb meets at 6:30 in the main auditorium and young peoples meeting convenes in the Sunday school annex at the same time, under the leadership of Guy Gasye.

The pastor will deliver the 7:30 evangelistic sermon on the subject, "A Murderer Saved," based on the personal experience a few years ago of leading a murderer to Christ shortly before his execution. Plan to attend this service.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Wallace R. Rogers, Pastor

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed by the congregation of the First Baptist church at the conclusion of the morning service on Sunday. This is the beginning of a new convention year, ad the pastor is urgic that every member of the congregation of the First Baptist church be present to participate in this Memorial Supper.

The new envelopes for 1936 are available for the membership, and a large number have already been taken. Those who have not called for their package are expected to do so Sunday morning. A group of the members will meet at the church on Sunday afternoon and carry envelopes to those who are unable to get them at the morning service. The envelopes are given to the membership, no pledges are taken, but each person is asked to help at much as possible. The tithe is suggested as a basis for all giving.

The pastor will preach at both services, the regular Sunday school schedule will be followed, and the B. T. U. will begin its new years work under director Nathan Harbour. New heaters have been installed, more inside work has been done on the new building, and all is in readiness for the record year in the whole program of the church.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
Gilbert Copeland, Minister

Now is the time for resolutions. Make yours the following, "I resolve to be at the house of God for worship every Lord's day in 1936." And, in harmony with Paul's instructions to the Church at Rome, make a sacrifice to keep that resolution. Bible classes at 10 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. "Reconciliation" will be the theme. Young peoples meeting, 6 p. m. Preaching at 7 a. m. These are worshiping hours at the church next Lord's day, and we invite you to make these services your services.

FIRST METHODIST
Fred R. Harrison, Pastor

The pastor, who hos returned from the church-wide Methodist Young People's Confrence at Memphis, will preach at both services Sunday. At the morning service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be solemnized following a brief communion message.

At the 5:30 Vesper service the subject of the sermon will be "Facing the New Year With Christ."

Begin the first Sunday of the New Year with worship. Come to the church school at 9:45 a. m. and remain for the morning worship and return for the vesper service. Make a good start in spiritual things on the Lord's day.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN
Rev. Thomas Brewster, Minister

Sunday school 9:45.

Morning service at 10:55, with Communion of the Lord's Supper.

Vesper services at 5 o'clock.

Young Peoples meeting at 6 o'clock.

Midweek service, Wednesday at 7:30.

New Record Mark for Auto Deaths

Eastern States Reduce Fatalities---Southern Record Is Worse

CHICAGO—(AP)—Motor vehicle fatalities reached a new all-time high of approximately 36,400 in 1935, the National Safety Council reported Thursday night.

The organization's final tabulations showed an increase in automobile accident deaths of about one per cent over the previous record of 36,101 in 1934.

But the council said that due to the increase in the nation's population the death rate per 100,000 was about the same as in 1934—28.5. It also concluded that the number of miles a motorist was able to travel without accident had increased because automobile registration advanced 4.3 per cent and gasoline consumption went up 6 per cent over 1934 in contrast to a rise of only one per cent in fatalities. Had crashes kept pace with the expansion in motoring, it calculated, the 1935 death roster would have ranged between 37,500 and 38,000.

Recent reports from state motor vehicle commissioners, particularly in the South, sent 1935 figures beyond the 1934 peak and over the 35,500 mark estimated for last year in preliminary calculations.

Eastern states, including New England, made the best showing in 1935 by reducing fatal accidents 3 per cent. There was an increase of one half of one per cent in the Midwest. Southern sates had an average advance of 3 per cent. This was three times the national average but the South had a boost of 8 per cent in gasoline consumption.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

A MOTHER'S SONG
Text: Luke 1:46158
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 5.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The New Testament centers in its story about Jesus Christ. His teachings and His mission to the world. He is the one dominanting figure that moves in its pages, and we should have had no Gospels without Him.

But both the historic facts of the record and the glimpses that we have into the soul of Mary, the mother of Jesus, make us wish that we might know more concerning her. Why was she chosen among women for that glorious motherhood? Was she merely the medium of the coming of that divine life into the world, or was she by faith and character fitted to be the mother of so gracious a child and so noble a Savior?

Fortunately, we have enough in the record to answer this question; and much of the answer comes in this mother's song which is the theme of ou rlesson.

When shepherds and wise men came to Bethlehem hailing the babe to Bethlehem hailing the babe to whom Mary had given birth, she sensed the destiny of the child; but her heart was full of wonderment. There must have been a strange mingling of home and motherly feeling with the sense of the world destiny of her child, and a shrinking from the day when He would go out from the home and family circle to fulfill the mission, which she could only dimly realize, for which He had come into the world.

The wonderment continued until the tragic years of the ministry. With what love and anxiety she must have seen His life endangered! Yet is all her wonderment and anxiety her loyalty never failed, and when the last hour came she followed the sad procession to Calvary, and there in the time of crucial need she stood by the cross.

Possibly few readers of the New Testament have sensed the tragic reality of that statement. "There stood by the cross the mother of Jesus." When one at all visualizes the scene, he has opportunity to see into the depths of a mother's faith and a mother's love.

It is in the light of all these later things that we must read and study this mother's song, the Magnificant. Here we can realize the quality of the faith and character of a mother who stood in the background all through the days of the Master's earthly life.

Here we can see the vision that upheld her, and we can understand the worthiness of the one chosen to be the mother of the King of Kings and the Prince of Peace. She shared the sacrifice life and death of her Son; she gave to the world the witness of a beautiful and noble motherhood.

It is no accident that wherever the name of Mary is known, the place of the mother is honored. There has been no contrast greater in history than in the position of women where the Christian faith has triumphed and her position in lands and times where the Christian Gospel, and the Judaism out of which it came, have been unknown.
